The Last Mosquito.

What dost thou here upon the wing
Dread insect with the cruel sting?
Thy comrades all have ceased to sing,
Thy flight is o'er.
I shall not find them in my net,
Or sweep them down with tawny wet,
Or chase them any more.

To stop me dost thou still propose,
By hovering thus about my nose,
In spite of all my frantic blows,
And dashing down my face?
Well, o'ercome of this wintry day,
To drive thee from thy mortal way
Is not my aim.

Upon my hand I'll tread thee,
For judging from thy frantic glee,
Of food thou hast immediate need,
To fight the cold;
I am content to let thee live;
Thy feverish companions I forgive—
Mosquitoes die!

I will restrain my lingering love,
And as I sit beside the fire,
Thy plumed head I will admire,
And learn their cause.
With pocket book I'll magnify,
The various facts of their career,
And learn their cause.

But dost, I beg thee and implore,
Sing singing while parting goes!
Just now I very nearly swore
The sound to hear.
Unless thou canst contrive to hush
Thy whistle, thy life's not worth a rush,
I truly fear.

What! adding again that pest!
I will not stand it, I'll be blessed!
Now—there!
To smother thee I've made up my mind,
But alas! I cannot find
Thy body anywhere.

—W. W. Bailey in Providence Journal.

VARIETY.

A London talkman feels as helpless as a dancing-master without his pumps.
Complains.—A paper in Dixon, Ky., complains that the boys carrying their backs on the floor plate of the church put solemn thoughts to hasty flight.

No Foundation.—There is no foundation for the story that the houses of one of Boston's real estate owners are so loaded with mortgages that he is obliged to put new underpinnings in every year.

Song Book.—A young lady in Niagara County, New York, had a bumblebee removed from her ear the other day, the insect having dashed in there. Now figure on the size of her ears.

His Reply.—An editor in Fredericksburg Virginia, was asked by a stranger if it was possible that little town kept up four newspapers, and the reply was, "No it takes four newspapers to keep up the town."

It is suggested that the immense door-plates worn by the ladies on their belts might be utilized by engraving thereon the wearer's name, age, residence, fortune, and the religious community to which her heart is free or engaged.

Wilkie Collins requested the man who was about to introduce him to a Syracuse audience, the other day, not to call him "the greatest living novelist." "Everybody," he said, "is the greatest living something, you know."

The famous wit and beauty, Lady Wortley Montague, made the most accurate observation ever published about her own country. "It goes far," she said, "to reconcile me to being a woman when I reflect that I am thus in no danger of ever marrying one."

A Sodus toper the other night got at the yeast jug and took a swig. Putting it down he called out to his wife, "Say, Jane, I wish you wouldn't mix that chicken feed over the cider jug, it's 'naw to make a hog sick." The yeast made him hop soon after.

Extravagance in language is a most ruinous phase of extravagance. The auctioneer, for instance, so habitually pile on the agony of the adjectives to work poor stuff, that when they have something really good to sell the bow snap and language falls then.

A serious charge has been brought against a school teacher in Illinois, the specifications of which are: "1. Immorality! 2. Parsimony! 3. Keeping disorderly school! Carrying undue weapons!" The Commendator who wrote the charge thinks of running the school himself next quarter.

the western side of Hawaii, has long been famed as a place of resort for invalids with bronchitis, or lung diseases. With its pure and mild atmosphere, with its absolute freedom from storms or high winds, with its porous soil, which, with its rich vegetation, retains a dampness and moisture, and with an unvarying temperature—that of the American or Southern States—has long been the favorite resort of the
